SWOT ANALYSIS

STRENGTHS

- Located less than 1 mile from I-55 and about 2 miles from I-294, giving tenants direct connectivity to the broader Chicago metro and the broader Midwest
- Roughly 12 miles from downtown Chicago, 5 miles from Midway, and 15 miles from O'Hare- which makes it a great spot for regional distribution and last-mile delivery
- Cicero Ave and W 65th St are built to handle heavy truck traffic, which makes day-to-day operations a lot easier for logistics tenants
- In the heart of Bedford Park's industrial core, surrounded by a ton of national tenants- one of the most active and in-demand areas in the Chicago South submarket
- The property is right next to the Belt Railway of Chicago, the largest intermediate switching terminal railroad in the US. For tenants with freight shipping needs, this is a huge operational advantage
- A federally funded $43M+ overpass at W 65th St and Harlem Ave will eliminate the train delays at the Belt Railway crossing, giving back an estimated 644 hours of driver time per day and making truck access to this property even better

WEAKNESS

- Cook County tax rates are significantly higher than neighboring DuPage and Will Counties, which can be a deterrent for some tenants when comparing locations and overall occupancy costs
- Increasing competitive pressure from both new and existing Class A & B industrial product in Bedford Park, with multiple vacancies currently on the market in similar size ranges- many of which have been sitting for over a year

THREATS

- Ongoing macroeconomic uncertainty
- Expanding competitive set and future construction pipeline within the Bedford Park industrial market

OPPORTUNITIES

- Proactively engage Bedford Park tenants with 2027 expirations to pursue early renewals and further stagger lease rollover exposure
- Potential election of Pat Hynes as Cook County Assessor could improve long-term predictability and stability surrounding property taxes
- Basis within building significantly lower than institutional competition allowing for more flexible lease terms to win a deal
